

A Few Words From The President

Folks like visiting foreign countries and Molossia is no exception. We welcome tourists to our nation once a month, April through October, and this year we have already had 115 visitors - with more to come. I'm certain that we will have welcomed over 200 tourists to our borders by the end of the last tour of the year, on 9 October. We love having visitors to our nation. We have much to be proud of here in Molossia, and we show it all off during every tour. I personally escort our visitors throughout Molossia, showing all the sights and telling all the tales about our nation. Visitors get to use our phone system, become Space Cadets, play golf and even get thrown in jail (if they misbehave). We enjoy demonstrating the quirks of our little nation. But we also like to remind our visitors that although we like to laugh and have fun in Molossia, we are nevertheless still a sovereign nation, albeit a small one, and possess all the attributes that a nation should have, including a government, defined borders, stable population and diplomatic capability. Above all, Molossia is a unique and amazing place, and we appreciate everyone that visits and appreciates us!

Molossia's Newest Citizen

28 August 2021 XLIV

The Republic of Molossia is proud to welcome our newest native-born citizen, Luna Rue Harrison. Luna is the eighth Molossian born since 1991, following the 9 November 2020 XLIII birth of Kassandra Dawn Morrow. Luna arrived on 25 August 2021 XLIV, at 10:51 PM MST, weighing 3 Fenwicks, 1 Bascomb (2.7 kg) and measuring 2.17 Nortons (38 cm) in length. Luna was born at St. Mary's Medical Center in Reno, Nevada, USA, but it was arranged that a pouch of dirt be placed under the delivery bed, so that she could be born over Molossian soil. The child of Molossian Nathan Harrison and Cassidy Apag, Luna is the eighth grandchild of The President and First Lady. Our nation's population was 34; the birth of the Eighth Grandchild has raised it to 35, small but mighty - and still growing. Welcome to Molossia Luna!

The Last Word With The First Lady

Hello, all, September is here and fall is near! Can you believe that we are only four months away from 2022? Many of us are still wondering what happened to 2020?! The days are long but the years are short, that's what I have heard and I would say it rings true. Kids are back in school looking for normalcy and the holidays are right around the corner. What does that mean for us? Well, a few things comes to mind. Time passes regardless of what is going on around us. A few minutes a day of meditation or exercise can lead to a greater overall picture of health and well-being. The same goes for schooling. Taking one class a semester will be a lighter load and as the years pass the credits will build up. Many of us just don't have time for big projects, but we all have a few minutes a day to devote to what matters. Over time, it will really count! Rome wasn't built in a day, so why do we expect ourselves to do everything right now? Social pressures to have it all can really take its toll on the psyche. Instead, build up to something greater as you enjoy the "right now". Look around you, what do you see that you are thankful for right now? Did it happen overnight? Probably not. In a world full of chaos, it's okay to go slow and enjoy the little things. The big things will come in time. The little things are what normalcy is all about.

Thank you all and until next time..

Keep your smile on, even behind mask, a smile can be felt in the heart.
